Bio:

SINAH (pronounced Xena) will debut her 10 track Album titled "SINAH" this coming June, released via Hamburg based Label "Finaltune Records". SINAH has drawn attention to her music through various official remixes including Alt-j, Beaty Heart and Barbarossa as well as her Debut Single Release of "Just Ok", which has seen a great online presence due to features on BBC Introducing, BuzzFeed and music blogs.

Originally from Berlin, her first ambitions were not musical ones, they came in the forms of owning a farm and later becoming an oceanologist, but a fear of sharks deterred her from pursuing the latter. At the age of 18 she spent a year in Brooklyn, NY, working as a session musician and continued her journey in London where she lives up to this day. Having gained stage experience by touring in Europe and the US including festivals such as Glastonbury and SXSW, she recently dedicated all her time to releasing her own music.

Written without following a specific genre, but simply producing what felt right for her at the time, whether it included acoustic or heavy electronic, pop or experimental. SINAH belongs to that group of remarkable young musicians who are pushing electronic music forward, drawing on a love of hip hop and blending it with the dance music to create something altogether new.

About the debut album "SINAH"

Written without following a specific genre, but simply producing what felt right for her at the time, whether it included acoustic or heavy electronic, pop or experimental. On the debut album SINAH's girly, ghostly voice is hypnotizing, riding trembling piano chords and drippy beats, static swipes and a mechanical heartbeat. Drawing on a love of hip hop and blending it with the dance music to create something altogether new. The 10 songs on the debut album are distinguished by their musical diversity. In addition to experimental tracks like R.I.P. or Potters especially stunning songs like Sleek, Harder and Loveless stand out. The half sung lyrics stress the anxiety in youth today, ultimately bringing to life a story that any listener can relate to.
